ACGC PRESIDENT'S REPORT

As the 2023-2024 President of ACGC, it is my honor to highlight some of the tremendous work being done to support the accreditation of 60 genetic counseling training programs. Since much of our day-to-day work revolves around various aspects of program accreditation, I would like to talk about that work first and foremost. As you will see in this report, in 2023 alone, we approved Candidacy Status for six future genetic counseling programs, granted New Program, Accreditation Status for three programs, and re-accredited eight existing genetic counseling training programs. Each one of those program reviews required countless hours of time and dedication by over 50 Program Review Committee (PRC) volunteer reviewers, many of whom served as site visitors, by our Executive Office that provides logistical and administrative support, and by our Board of Directors who thoughtfully deliberated and rendered accreditation decisions for each of these programs.

Additionally, twenty volunteers from the PRC collectively spent numerous hours reviewing Reports of Current Status from 49 programs. Finally, in addition to program review for New Accreditation, Reaccreditation, and Maintenance of Accreditation, the Board of Directors reviewed and deliberated on twenty-one Program Leadership Changes, six Substantive Changes, and four Standards Variance requests. I would like to thank all the individuals who have been involved in the work required for program accreditation, most of whom serve as volunteers.

As if the day-to-day operations of program accreditation were not enough, as you will also see in this report, the ACGC has several committees and workgroups that have been diligently working on important projects to support the organization and many of our strategic initiatives. Here are some key highlights for 2023:

- The revised Standards of Accreditation were published in August 2023! These were the result of an off-cycle standards review by the Standards Committee, driven by the ACGC Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, and Justice (DEIJ) Committee recommendations.
- At the same time, the revised Practice Based Competencies (PBC) were also published, a culmination of over three years of work by the PBC Taskforce.
- We held three virtual office hours hosted by ACGC Board members and the Executive Office staff to encourage increased transparency and communication regarding accreditation processes and procedures.
- The newly commissioned DEIJ Committee started its work this year. Committee members are liaising with other ACGC committees including Standards, Nominations, and PRC to center DEIJ principles across the organization. They also provided a final review of the PBCs prior to publication.

- We signed a Statement of Collaboration with the other genetic counseling professional organizations to develop strategies to promote, support, and sustain DEIJ in the genetic counseling profession.
- We welcomed two new staff members to ACGC: Joseph Jackson as Executive Director and Angela Bond as Accreditation Manager. We are so pleased to have them on the team, and they have made the staffing transition seamless.

As we look forward to 2024, we will continue our work to ensure excellence in education for the future of genetic counseling. In particular, the ACGC Standards Committee will begin its work to perform a scheduled full review of the Standards of Accreditation. This process will be multi-faceted and there will be opportunities for the public to provide feedback at key points in the process. Keep a look out for future related communications.

I would like to end by, once again, thanking all the dedicated volunteers that serve on all of taskforces and committees, the Executive Office staff, and Board members for helping ACGC achieve its mission of advancing quality in genetic counseling education. I am honored to be serving as the current President of ACGC in an extremely productive and successful year for the organization and am excited to see what is in store for 2024.

Erin Carmany, MS, CGC
Board President

PROGRAM ACCREDITATION STATISTICS

GEOGRAPHICAL DISTRIBUTION OF PROGRAMS

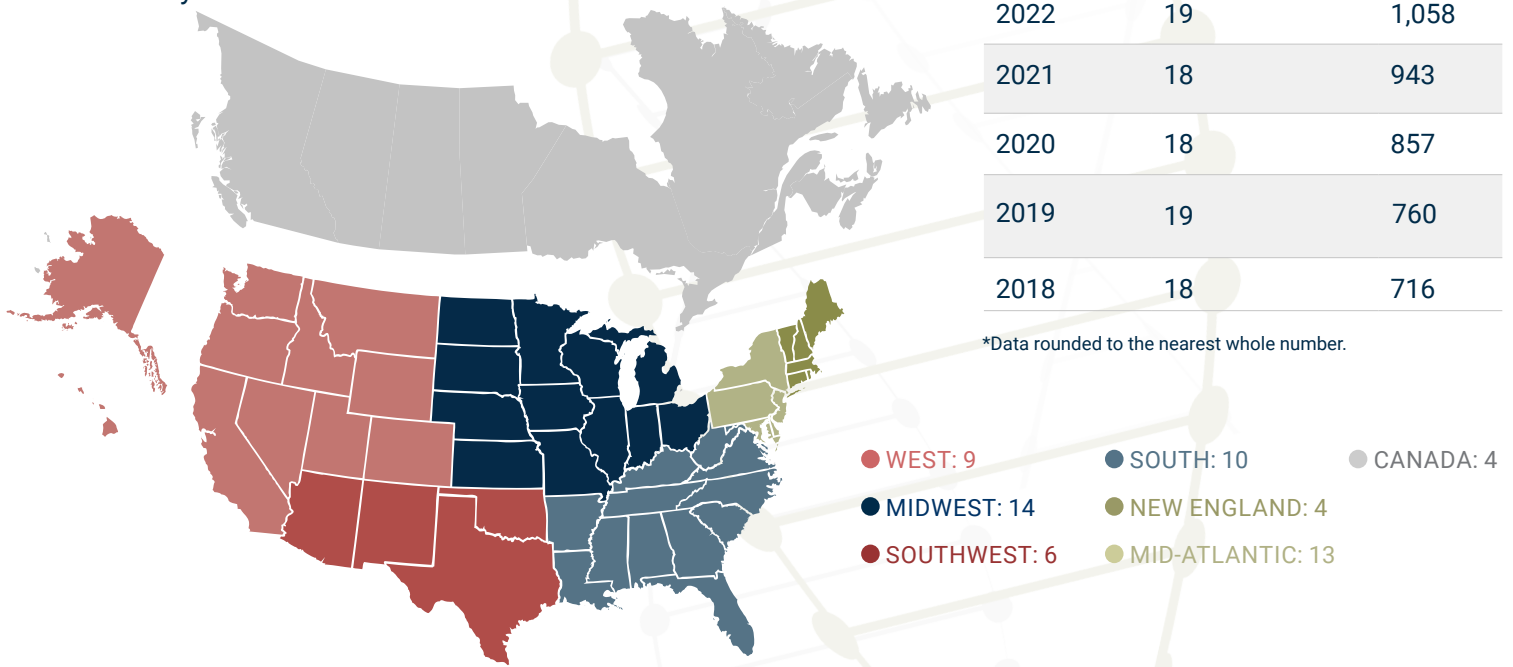

In December 2023, the number of ACGC accredited programs throughout the USA and Canada was sixty. Visit the ACGC website www.gceducation.org for links to each accredited program.

CURRENT PROGRAM AVERAGES

The statistics listed below are averages across all accredited programs required to submit a Report of Current Status and Self-Study in 2023.

2023 REACCREDITATION

ACGC completed eight site visits for the 2023 reaccreditation cycle. The following programs were reviewed and granted reaccreditation: Indiana University, Kean University, Mt. Sinai Icahn School of Medicine, Johns Hopkins University/ National Human Genome Research Institute, The Ohio State University, University of California, Los Angeles, University of Maryland School of Medicine, and the University of Pennsylvania.

NEW PROGRAMS

ACGC granted the following programs Accredited New Program status within 2023:

- University of Kansas
- University of Texas - Southwestern
- Weill Cornell Medical College

TIMELINE OF RELATED ACTIVITIES:

1996 PBCs developed by American Board of Genetic Counseling (ABGC)

2005 PBCs reviewed and revised by ABGC-AGCPD joint retreat

2011 PBC task force representing ABGC, ACGC, and AGCPD performed comprehensive review, submitted revisions to ACGC Board of Directors (BOD)

2013 Revised PBCs announced, oversight moved to ACGC

2018 PBCs related to genetic counselors ordering genetic testing reviewed at request of NSGC, revision to PBC IV reviewed and approved by ACGC

2020 ACGC PBC Task Force convened to review and revise PBCs

2023 ACGC PBC Task Force released revised PBCs.

PRACTICE-BASED COMPETENCIES REVIEW

After significant effort from the Practice-Based Competencies Task Force, ACGC Board of Directors, and community partners across the genetic counseling community, a revised set practice-based competencies (PBCs) were released on August 31, 2023. The task force applied the developmental framework, which supports the assessment of learning based on an identified set of skills or competencies. These competencies provide a common language with which to assess learners' progression through and completion of an educational program.

The revised set of PBCs includes seven competencies and 25 sub-competencies. The seven major competencies include:

- Genetics and Genomics Expertise - Apply knowledge of genetics and genomics principles, genetic conditions, and testing technologies to the practice of genetic counseling.
- Risk Assessment - Evaluate personalized genetic risk.
- Counseling - Promote integration of psychosocial needs and client-centered decision-making into genetic counseling interactions.
- Communication - Communicate genetics and genomics information to clients, colleagues, and other community partners.
- Research - Synthesize the evidence base relevant to genetic counseling.
- Healthcare Systems - Demonstrate how genetic counselors fit within the larger healthcare system.
- Professional Identity - Embody the values of the genetic counseling profession.

The full set of competencies and associated content is linked here.

Notable changes to the revised PBCs include a new visual format, concisely written, applicability to the entry-level genetic counselor, and measurability. Accompanying the PBCs, at the above link, is a detailed description of the Task Force's revision process and rationale as well as an explanation of the developmental framework and sample frameworks.

ACGC STANDARDS

The goal of the ACGC Standards Committee is to monitor, evaluate, and make recommendations to the ACGC Board of Directors for revision of the ACGC Standards of Accreditation.

In 2023, the Standards Committee finished the off-cycle review of the Standards of Accreditation which incorporated the recommendations of the 2021 ACGC DEI Taskforce. Public comments obtained at the end of 2022 were reviewed and incorporated into the Standards of Accreditation.

The ACGC Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, and Justice Committee was consulted as part of this process. The revised Standards for Accreditation were published on August 1, 2023, with an accompanying FAQ document.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF VOLUNTEERS

Thank you to our many volunteers from this past year – we could not do it without you! Please visit the ACGC website to see open volunteer opportunities.

COMMUNICATIONS COMMITTEE

The ACGC Communications Committee is charged with overseeing communications involving the ACGC and enabling transparency in the accreditation process for graduate programs in genetic counseling. This entails creating and overseeing the annual strategic communication plan, website, annual report, submissions to genetic counseling publications, and other tasks related to communication with our stakeholders. Keep an eye out for ACGC contributing to upcoming issues of Perspectives to highlight topics related to new and existing program accreditation.

DIVERSITY, EQUITY, INCLUSION, AND JUSTICE COMMITTEE

The Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, and Justice Committee is instrumental in revising existing accreditation processes and standards to ensure greater diversity, equity, inclusion, and justice in genetic counseling graduate education. To fulfill these goals, members of this committee work to identify systematic inequities in accreditation of genetic counseling programs, provide recommendations to other ACGC committees regarding DEIJ language, and recommend revisions to policies to encourage embedding DEIJ focus across all ACGC activities and initiatives.
